

NEWBURY

William Deal of Piermont, N. H., made a short call in Newbury last Friday. Some 40 odd years ago Mr. Deal was an apprentice for E. C. Stocker, a noted harness maker of his time, and "Stocker's shop was a rendezvous for gentlemen of leisure who had more time on their hands than business." Here in this old shop momentous questions were settled; questions relating to the state and nation as well as those of a more trivial nature. The very atmosphere of the shop was impregnated with Methodism as Mr. Stocker was a Methodist man in business as well as in religious matters. Under this influence William Deal's character was moulded, and no doubt this accounts, or is the reason why Piermont has such a reliable and substantial citizen. In a short interview with this boy of 40 years ago he gave us his recollections of the house of South Main street, and states there were two houses on the lot now occupied by the residence of E. B. Greer. These were the homes of Captain James Wallace and his estimable wife, Aunt Matilda; the other that of Mrs. Laura Burnham. Both of these houses were destroyed by fire, the Wallace home some 25 years ago and the Burnham house went down in the great conflagration of 1913. The house now owned by Raymond Worthen was the home of Deacon George Swasey; the next house Col. Jacob Kent and then came Ezekiel Sawyer's, the schoolhouse, E. W. Loomis, Edwin Ransom, Edwin Bayler, Mrs. E. K. Prouty, Mrs. Dutton, John Atwood, the parsonage, Rev. Z. S. Haynes, Gilman Barnett, Mrs. Eliza Blair, John Hale and S. L. Eastman and around the corner, A. S. Wood, Clinton Eastman, Myra Durant, Richard Doe, Dr. E. V. Watkins and in the house now owned by George L. Andrews lived Rev. John English. Only 40 years have elapsed, yet the titles of these homes have all changed and the owners thereof like Longfellow's Arabs, "have silently folded their tents" and faded away into the great unknown. I doubt if there is a young man or woman in the place who has reached the age of 30 years who can remember a person named in this list of the past. What more vivid illustration can be given of the old hymn, "I Am a Pilgrim and I Am a Stranger, I Doubt I Can Tarry, I Can Tarry a Night." Stocker's shop is now a tenement house; harness making is now almost a lost art as the automobile and aeroplane have superseded the horse-drawn vehicle. What was fast enough for our fathers is all too slow for us, yet there are wheels which revolve with their usual rapidity, the wheels of time. They will soon bring another 40 years and perhaps then another old-time resident may come back and will tell an interested listener who perchance may live in one of the homes we occupy to-day who were the residents of South Main street when he was a boy, and if the question should be raised, where are these men and women of olden time? The answer would be again repeated, "They, like the Arabs, have silently folded their tents and faded away into the great unknown."

Mrs. John Hale, her daughter, Mrs. James F. McElroy, her grandson, John Hale McElroy, his wife and two children arrived Sunday afternoon, coming from Albany, N. Y., by automobile. Mrs. Hale, who is in her 93rd year, stood the trip remarkably well. About six weeks ago Mrs. Hale had a fall while at Balston Spa, N. Y., resulting in a broken shoulder. From this injury she is recovering and it will give her much pleasure to meet her old-time friends and acquaintances.

Miss Ruth Brown of Arlington, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Avery. Miss Brown is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Brown, our former station agent and wife.

A Mr. Chamberlin blew into town Saturday night and landed at the Taggart home, where he was most cordially received; and that reminds us Miss Evelyn Taggart is at home.

Hall's pond is getting to be a favorite bathing resort. Now if some of the nearby natives should erect some bath houses where a man could disrobe without being the prey to mosquitoes they would not only make good dividends on their investment but would be a boon to humanity.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Will Vanish

(Boudoir Secret)

The judicious use of a delicate paste insures any woman a clear, hairless skin. To prepare the paste, mix a little of the powdered delatone with some water, then apply to the objectionable hairs for two or three minutes. When the paste is removed, and the skin washed, every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain attends the use of the delatone and it will not mar the most sensitive skin, but to insure results, see that you get real delatone—adv.

The Universal Daily Habit!

EVERY man, woman or child in this city who can read, reads some daily newspaper every day.

It is as much a habit with them as eating, or talking, or walking.

The newspaper is their point of contact with the outside world and with each other.

In every other city of any size, other newspapers are printed and other people read them in the same intensive way. In the great stretches of rural communities the newspapers from the cities radiate out through the mail boxes.

North America is literally bound together and welded into a continent with common knowledge and common impulses—by its 30,000,000 daily newspaper circulation.

Newspaper readers have come to look on the daily advertising as part of the news. They turn to their newspaper when they want to buy, just as they turn to it for the ball score or the latest developments across the sea.

Local merchants know this and they know they can build a larger volume of business at less cost through the newspaper than through any other means of contact with possible customers.

Manufacturers and distributors of trade-marked goods are also coming to learn that North America is a series of markets—each differing from the other in opportunities to sell goods.

Each good market can be reached by newspaper advertising at low cost and without wasted effort in barren localities.

For this reason the newspaper has become the greatest medium for national advertising, just as it has always been the greatest medium for local advertising.

The national advertiser can best cover this market or any market through the newspapers.

Manufacturers and distributors are invited to write for a copy of the book, "National Advertising and the Newspaper," to the Bureau of Advertising, 400 World Building, New York.

LORAIN OVEN HEAT REGULATOR

Many women would like to put up fruits, vegetables and berries, but dread the hard work and the hanging for hours over a steaming range during the hot summer weather. Here is a new and better way to put up things for Winter use that makes canning so easy and pleasant that every woman will want to stock her preserve closet with good things to eat.

The new method is called "Lorain" Oven Canning, because it is done in the oven of a gas range equipped with the "Lorain" Oven Heat Regulator. The "Lorain" is essential because only with this heat regulator is it possible to insure exact, sustained oven temperatures over a long period of time.

To can fruit, berries, vegetables the "Lorain" way you clean and wash the material, blanch (scald) by dropping in boiling water according to instructions, then plunge in cold water. You then pack in glass jars, put on caps loosely, and place jars in oven. Set the "Lorain" wheel at 250 degrees and leave for one to three hours as indicated by the chart. Then remove jars and seal tight.

That's all. And the results are fruit, vegetables and berries that taste as though they had just been picked.

Reliable "ANGLIRON" Gas Ranges

are equipped with the "Lorain." Let us demonstrate this wonderful range and the "Lorain." Let us tell you all about how this device makes the kitchen tasks easy and simple. It is as easy to cook a whole meal at one time in the "Lorain" Oven without watching it. Ask about the new way of putting up fruit and vegetables.
